Young Philosophy 2026

Between the Art of Philosophy and the Philosophy of Art

(XXI. Annual International Conference for Ph.D. Students and Young Researchers)

Philosophy is one of the most diverse disciplines. Thanks to its openness, it is constantly able to respond and reflect not only on its own problems, but also on those arising from other areas. In addition to this interdisciplinary inclination, philosophy is also characterized by the accessibility of its fundamental questions and themes, which can be reflected upon even outside of strictly scientific (or rather academic) research.

The goal of the Young Philosophy 2026 conference with the theme Between the Art of Philosophy and the Philosophy of Art is to reflect and celebrate this multifaceted nature of philosophy, which helps it remain a vital scientific discipline in the modern world, despite its ancient tradition. We therefore invite participants of the conference to ponder the question: “How to master the art of philosophy?” and offer diverse perspectives on what the art of philosophizing is, was, and can be. We also want to ask: “In what guises can philosophy be encountered?”, with the intention to highlight its ability to lend its content to various, mainly artistic, forms.
